

Welcome back! This is it, the last semester of the Croft senior thesis. Hopefully by now you have done some of your analysis and have a plan for finishing your thesis in the next few months. The most important piece of advice I have for you is to continue working hard on the thesis now.

First Draft

The first draft of the thesis is due Monday, February 25. This is only five weeks away. Think about what your finished thesis will look like and think about what you will need to do each week to get there by Monday, February 25. This is the moment to work the hardest on your thesis. Your other classes are just getting started and you have more time now than you will later in the semester. A good, complete first draft will lay the groundwork for a high-quality thesis and a low-stress semester.

Second Draft

The second draft of the thesis is due to your mentor, your second reader, and your third reader on Friday, March 22. Your mentor and the second and third readers should be reading a complete paper so that they can aim their comments at helping you push your analysis to the next level.

If you do not have a full draft completed at this point, you will be facing an uphill battle for the rest of the semester, and your final product will not reflect the best of your abilities.

Comments from readers

During the two weeks after you submit your second draft you should continue polishing your work as your committee reads it over. This is also a good time to prepare the presentation of your work that you will give at your defense (see <http://www.croft.olemiss.edu/current/thesis-defense> for instructions on preparing the defense). Your committee will return your thesis to you by Friday, April 5, at which point you will meet with your mentor and discuss how to integrate the readers' comments into your work, taking into consideration the scope of your project and the time remaining before the end of their semester.

Please refer to the Senior Thesis Format page on the website (<http://www.croft.olemiss.edu/current/croft-thesis-format>) a detailed explanation of the formatting requirements for the thesis.

Final Draft

After making all necessary revisions, you will turn in the final draft of your thesis on Monday, April 22, and, in conversation with your mentor and third reader, you will schedule a time for your thesis defense during regular business hours between Wednesday, April 24 and Friday, May 3. You are responsible for finding a time that is convenient for both your mentor and your third reader.

Turning in a complete final draft by the deadline of Monday, April 22, is the only way to ensure that you will be able to defend and graduate this semester.

Final Grade

Your final grade for Inst 422 will be based on an evaluation by each of your three readers of both your written thesis and the oral presentation that you give at your defense. The criteria for this evaluation are as follows:

- The student has articulated a compelling research question or hypothesis.
- The student has contextualized the research topic.
- The student has used appropriate literature and primary sources.
- The student has employed methods of analysis that are both explicit and appropriate for testing the hypothesis.
- The student has convincingly demonstrated the validity of the hypothesis.
- The note apparatus, bibliography, and any graphs or tables are organized and presented in a manner in keeping with the standards of the discipline.
- The thesis meets the linguistic and stylistic standards of the discipline.
- The student met my deadlines and those set by the Croft Institute.
- The student kept the appointments we set and was respectful of my time.
- The student's oral presentation at the outset of the defense was successful.
- The student's oral defense of the thesis was successful.

Your written thesis will count for 80% of the grade for Inst 422 and your defense for 20%. A grade of C or better is required to complete the course for credit and graduate. Please discuss these criteria with your mentor to determine what his or her expectations are for each of them.

Model Theses

The Croft Institute has posted sample senior theses and thesis prospectuses on its website. The theses can be found at: <http://www.croft.olemiss.edu/current/model-theses>. You will have to log -in to see the theses.

Let me reiterate that the key to success this semester is working hard now so that you can turn in a complete draft of your thesis on Monday, February 25! This should be your absolute number one priority for the next four weeks. As always, if you have any questions or comments, please do not hesitate to contact me at wschenck@olemiss.edu or 915-1500.
